Presents

July 24–27

Fort Bragg, North Carolina

Welcome to the 2014 Junior World Skeet Championship

It is a great privilege to host the Junior World Skeet Championship and it is a true pleasure to welcome the competitors and their families! We have a talented and outstanding group of young people coming to join us. Fort Bragg Clay Target Center and Cross Creek Skeet Association look forward to providing the best experience possible for this amazing group.

While we cannot guarantee everyone a perfect score this week, we can guarantee a tournament filled with great targets, outstanding referees, excellent food, and willing volunteers. Come and enjoy the down home North Carolina charm and all the fun events. You'll be sure to make several lasting and extraordinary memories. Many shooters will reach a personal best this week, and we look forward to helping each of them celebrate their special milestones.

We know that everyone can have a good time this week both on and off the field. The Junior World Skeet Championship is a great time to make new friends, strengthen old friendships, and grow the bonds of community that hold this great sport together. Please take the time to go out and meet new people. Families travel from all across the country to attend this prestigious event, and as such this week is the perfect time to form new friendships with shooters both young and old. New relationships between shooters will help to keep this great sport thriving and growing. The young shooters here are the future of the shooting sports, and judging by the quality of the character of these young people, these sports have a long and bright future ahead of them!

From the 12 regulation skeet ranges, quaint club house, and 28 RV sites with bathhouse at the Clay Target Center located in the Sandhills region of North Carolina, to the fun and lively dinners and evening events, there will be something for everyone to enjoy!

The Sandhills of North Carolina has plenty to offer each family that comes to visit. The military history of Fort Bragg, the Airborne-Special Operations Museum, revitalized downtown Fayetteville, local towns with numerous antique shops, nearby world class golf courses, and so much more, make this a very special place. We know that everyone can find something memorable outside of their shooting time should they choose to seek it.

So please, make yourselves at home, shoot straight, form new friendships, and most importantly have a great time! Thank you so much for attending. We look forward to conducting the best Junior World we can here at the Fort Bragg Clay Target Center! If we can be of any assistance at any time, do not hesitate to let us know.

Good Luck,

Jim Tiner and Steve Duncan, Shoot Chairmen and all the wonderful volunteers and donors that make this shoot possible.

CONCURRENT COMPETITION FORMAT

Years ago, the Junior World Skeet Championships did not exist. The Sub-Junior, Junior and Collegiate competitors had to compete in the NSSA World Championships held every year in October. This presented challenges for the younger shooters to attend due to educational commitments. The NSSA decided to develop a new “Junior Only” event to be held annually in the month of July. Hence, in 1987, the Junior World was born. Every year the Junior World shoot travels around the country to a new location. Any club that wishes to host the Junior World is required to formally request the event. NSSA has a minimum list of requirements that each club must comply with in order to be considered for the Junior World host club. An example of these requirements is the number of skeet fields required to handle the volume of Junior World Shooters. The NSSA executives evaluate each of the requests and pre-select a host club for the following year.

During most NSSA registered skeet events, competitors are placed in separate classifications (AAA, AA, A, B, etc.) based on their target average in the event. The competitors can also compete based on concurrent status such as Sub-Junior, Junior, Collegiate, Lady and many others. NSSA awards All-American points for both open and concurrent performance. The open All-American point system is based on the number of AA and AAA shooters attending the event. The concurrent All-American point system is based on the number of competitors competing in the same event in the same concurrent (Sub-Junior, Junior, etc.). At local skeet competitions, it is uncommon to have very many (Sub-Junior, Junior, etc.) competitors. This makes the Junior World a key event in the selection of the Sub-Junior, Junior and Collegiate All-American teams.

During the Junior World, competitors compete in their concurrent(s) only. For instance, Sub-Juniors will only compete against other Sub-Juniors. There is no competition between classes such as AAA, AA, A, B, etc. One special twist to the Junior World is that concurrent events are classified by Class I, Class II or Class III based on their target average for each event (Doubles, 12, 20, 28, .410 Bore and HOA). Please note that the HAA (Doubles and 4 guns) event at the Junior World is for “Honors Only” in the event that a shooter does well enough to hit all 500 targets! The break points in the different classes and the corresponding averages are specified by the Junior World committee and are listed in the shoot program. The Junior World classification system is used to award medals for each class. Sub-Junior and Junior class medals are awarded for first through sixth in each class. Collegiate class medals are awarded for first through third. In each event, the Champion, Runner-Up and Third place winners in each concurrent are removed from Class I, II or III and then Classes I, II and III places are determined. All-American points for Sub-Junior, Junior and Collegiate are awarded to the event Champion, Runner-Up, Third and places in Class I. Competitors can declare up to Class I if they so desire. This must be done when they register and prior to competing in the event.

In each event, if there are any ties in score for Class I, II and III places, a shoot-off occurs to determine the winner. Long runs may also be used to determine Class II and III places. Long runs are defined as the number of consecutive targets broken from the FRONT or the BACK of a competitor’s event score. For instance, if a competitor misses their fourth target in the first box and then breaks the remaining targets for a score of 99, the competitor’s long runs are 3 and 96. The largest number is used to determine class placement against other competitors with a score of 99 in the event. Long runs are commonly used at the NSSA World Championships due to the number of potential shoot-offs. The Junior World Shoot Management will use shoot-offs to determine places for medals and Class I places. Long runs will be used only in the event of inclement weather or any event that would preclude shoot-offs breaking ties. This will be determined by the Protest Committee in conjunction with Shoot Management.

In case of ties, shoot-offs will be conducted to determine all awards; long runs may be used to break ties for Class II and III awards if time constraints so dictate. NSSA “miss and out by station” shoot-off rules will apply for all individual and team awards. Two-person team scores will be combined and used as an aggregate score to determine awards. Shoot-offs will be conducted with skeet doubles at determined stations until a winner is determined. All shoot-offs will be announced to competitors at least 10 minutes prior to the shoot-offs. If possible, shoot-off sheets will be posted near the shoot-off fields. All contestants and/or teams called for a shoot-off and not present within 10 minutes will forfeit all rights to any award they might have won due to the results of the shoot-off. All shoot-offs will occur at the conclusion of the final event of that day according to NSSA rules. Shoot-offs will run on three fields: Sub-Junior, Junior and Collegiate shooters simultaneously.

CHAMPION OF CHAMPIONS EVENT

It is a tradition at NSSA World Championship events to conduct a non-registered preliminary event known as the Champion of Champions competition. This preliminary event is also referred to as the Champ of Champs (C of C) Event. All competitors wishing to compete are allowed. Parents and coaches are allowed to compete with their youth competitors; however, preference for youth shooters is given to the available competitor slots.

The event consists of shooting one regulation round of skeet in each 12, 20, 28 gauge and .410 Bore totaling 100 targets shot. Sufficient time is given between rounds to reconfigure tubed guns for each subsequent round. Note: a shell smaller than the gauge specified can be used for the first three rounds.

There are no All-American points awarded and no two-person concurrent teams or parent/child teams in the C of C Event.
